Turning Dreams into Reality
"Stay positive, never be afraid of failures to chase your dream."
 - Chua Meng Koon, Athlete, Nexia 15

Like many athletes, he too, has a dream. Travelling more than 4,400 miles away from home, Chua Meng Koon will be representing Singapore in the 5th China Open Athletics Championship (Javelin and Shot Put Category) in Beijing this year. The series of athletics events are open to both male and female athletes in all impairment groups. Athletes from all over the world come together to compete according to their functional classification.

Meng Koon suffered from Acute Transverse Myelitis as a result of a fall at four years old which affected his spinal cord, and therefore, he faces difficulties in his movements.

However, this did not stop him from approaching the Singapore Disability Sports Council (SDSC) to go through a series of athletics programme training in Javelin and Shot Put. SDSC is the only organisation in Singapore which reaches across all disability groups, offering a wide range of sports at both elite and non-elite levels. It is, in fact, Singapore's national disability sports organisation.

It all began with his passion for Archery when he won the beginners' competition just months after picking up the bow. However, he had to give up the sport due to work demands. In 2015, after watching fellow athletes in Team Singapore relentlessly pressing on, closing in onto their goals, especially the incredible sporting feats of para-paddler Jason Chee, it stirred something within Meng Koon - he knew he had to try again.

As we approach the Championship, we have the privilege to interview Meng Koon to share his thoughts about the upcoming competition.

When did you start picking up Javelin and Shot Put and what did you like about the sports?

"I started picking up Javelin and Shot Put since March 2016. Actually, when I first approached SDSC, my initial plan was to take up Archery again. However, during that period, there were no training sessions available and thus I was recommended to take up athletics first in a bid to build up my strength. I prefer Javelin over Shot Put because Shot Put requires mainly strength, whereas for Javelin, you can compensate for your lack of strength with your throwing technique. I also mostly prefer individual sports as the training does not require a partner. Hence, I can train at a more flexible pace."

What are the main driving factor(s) that motivate you to take part in competitive sports?

"I love sports and I have a dream that one day, I can represent my country on the podium at an international level. I have gone for training (i.e. Archery and Sailing) and have also played in different types of sporting events previously such as, Dragon Boat and Table Tennis, but the main driving factor of being selected for the Paralympic Games has prompted me to approach SDSC."

Due to your past accident which resulted in huge movement restrictions, you strived to train competitively despite the physical challenges - what kept you going?

"The people around me gave me the strength to continue to pursue my dream. I have to thank my family members, Coach Jaffa, Mr. Loh from SDSC, and my colleagues, Henry Tan, Tan Kah Leong, Tan Swee Wan, Maria Teo and Angeline Peh. Without their support, I might not even be able to have a chance to participate in an international sports competition."

Can you share with us some details of your training regime? How do you juggle work with competitive training?

"Our training location is at Kallang Practice Track (within walking distance from Stadium MRT station) and it falls on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays after 6:30pm. We usually go through a set of training exercises given by the coach, mainly weight training, after which there may be practice throwing sessions. On average, my sessions will usually end before 8:30pm.

During non-training days, I will also train on my own. In order to juggle between work and my training, I have also bought dumbbells to train at home as there may be times that I am unable to go for my scheduled training sessions."

Previously, in your interview with The New Paper in 2016, you mentioned that it is your dream to represent Singapore in an international competition. Now that you've made it, how do you feel?

"I feel honoured to be able to represent my own country to compete in an international competition but at the same time, I am actually feeling very nervous about it." Last year, Meng Koon has previously brought home two gold medals from the 44th National Para Athletics Championship 2016 for both Shot Put and Javelin. He also achieved first place in the Singapore National Para Games (2016) under SDSC.

Lastly, any advice to share with people who are struggling to chase their dreams?

"Frankly speaking, I have also been struggling and had even thought of giving up at some point in my competitive sporting journey, but I am lucky to have people around me giving me invaluable advice, which I would like to share: In life, there will always be challenges that you need to face. It may not be as smooth as you would like it to be, but with a positive mindset and a spirit of never giving up, you will be able to achieve your dream. Even if you are not able to achieve it, you will still have no regrets trying."
